A self-licking ice cream cone is a self-perpetuating system that has no purpose other than to sustain itself.

Colonisation and its ongoing impacts

Western Governance

- Rules
- Compliance
- Expectations

First-Nations Governance

- Intrinsic
- Embedded
- Unique to each community

The path to Right Way Governance

Required Compromise

- Delegated authorities
- Community ownership

Required Compromise

- Deep listening
- Kapati
- Mutual trust
- Respect
- Valuing community ownership

METHODS FOR CHANGE

Yarning

- Supports control from the interviewed, rather than the interviewer
- Requires time
- Involves deep listening – not listening for a response, but for connections.

Deep Listening

- Dadirri (Daly River)
- Gulpa Ngawal (Yorta Yorta – Murray River Region)
- Molla Wariga (Gunai/Kurnai – Gippsland Region, Vic)

Yarning

- Inviting deep conversations
- Kapati (Top End)
- Stories and yarning, narrative, as organisational practices

THINKING AND DOING THROUGH ECOLOGICAL SYSTEMS APPROACH

‘WE DO THINGS DIFFERENTLY’

- Change can start at any or multiple parts of a system
- Unpacking the tacit, hidden, unconscious to explore the interactions and interplay parts within a system to create space for change

TRANSFORMATIONAL SPACES

What happens when communities are supported to undertake reflective and reflexive processes to explore their understanding of themselves?

What happens when we make space and time for community governance practices to lead action?

How can this knowledge sustain the dissonance and disruption needed to make space for transformation that leads to and strengthens effective Aboriginal Community Control?
